Postponing 'Feature Plane'

Since I have featured the planes of most of the chapter members, I have decided to postpone any future editions of the 'Feature Plane' until spring and warmer weather that is more conducive to being outside taking pictures. If anyone has an interesting article or is willing to write one to replace the 'Feature Plane', please let me know. I'm always happy for newsworthy things to put in here for everyone to read.

Hmmm. . . . I just learned of an airplane that will be for sale by an EAA member in the near future. It's a Cherokee, and fully IFR certified. When I get the complete information, I'll have a bit about it in here, and will try to have the info including some pictures on the website, too.

Eldon tells me that progress has been made on his Hummelbird, but that it probably won't see any air time until next spring. Since he is not a very mechanical type person, he is having to rely a lot on other people to help him, and this slows things down.

Paul Teague tells me that he has purchased a set of plans for a plane that he hopes to start work on in the near future. Ask him Sunday.

Paul Flynn says it looks like things are finally starting to come together for his Thorp. He's getting excited about it now.

Mike B. and I had planned to go to Dallas for the EAA Light Sport Plane Tour, but the forecasted weather for our expected return time was for storms, so we canceled our plans. As it turned out, the weather forecasters were wrong. But, when neither plane nor pilot are IFR certified, safety was more important. We could have gone and returned with only high winds to contend with. I didn't feel quite so bad when I learned that John & Edith Darting from Hillsboro cancelled plans for the Fairview, OK fly-in for the same reasons.
